

ABSTRACT

Jewish feminist thought and Jewish feminist philosophy are not equal conceptions. Jewish feminist thought was originated from the impact of the western feminism and Jewish women's reflections on their living realm; its researching scope covers many aspects such as society, history, etc; it has obvious feature of realities. However, feminist scholars have focused on issues, such as the existence of god, god's image, the concept of chosen people, the Jewish law and classical text, etc. This characteristic is not only an interpretation and reconstruction of Jewish tradition and women, but also is inspiration to the development of Jewish philosophy.